Dear Student:

The ASUC Student Advocate's Office is a free and confidential student service that can provide you with assistance in your current conduct matter. If you are receiving this letter, you have been notified by the Center for Student Conduct that you may have violated the Code of Student Conduct.

We are an official service of the Associated Students of the University of California (ASUC), and are fully independent of the University administrators and faculty. Our office is designed to make sure that students have the expertise and support necessary to fully explore their options in the disciplinary process. Our staff is trained in all facets of the disciplinary process, and can help you reach a reasonable outcome.

If you would like our assistance, or if you have any questions regarding the Conduct process, do not hesitate to call us at (510) 642-6912. We are also open for personal consultations from Monday to Friday between 10AM and 5PM in Eshleman Hall, Room 412B. Additionally, we can be reached via email at help@berkeleysao.org. Visit our website <http://advocate.berkeley.edu> for more information.
